

ABSTRACT

[0001] This invention relates to methods of preparing crosslinked polymer gels useful in subterranean well operations, to compositions comprising such polymers, and to the use of such compositions in treating subterranean formations. In certain exemplary embodiments, the crosslinked polymer gels are produced from emulsion polymerization reactions.